

Say, SOMETHING, Anyway

I GIVE this column today to M. C. Blackman, publicity director for the State of Arkansas.

Former newspaper man, and a good one, Mr. Blackman lays the following situation before the people—Mr. Blackman speaking:

Telling the world about anything these days is a highly competitive and very expensive business. The enormous sums spent yearly for advertising in newspapers, magazines and other mediums by business are proof that it pays dividends. Business just doesn't put out money unless it gets returns.

A state is no exception to other organizations with something to sell. If it doesn't speak out, loudly and often, accurately describing what it has to offer, the people with money to spend or invest will go elsewhere.

Shuster "Fired" From Corporation Body by Governor

Huntsville Man Declares He Has Been Loyal to Bailey

SHAKEUP IS HINTED

Governor Planning "Reorganization," According to Letter

LITTLE ROCK—(P)—M. I. Shuster, Huntsville, member of the Arkansas Corporation Commission since last January, announced Friday he had been "fired" by Governor Bailey.

Making public a letter from the governor terminating his services effective December 1, Shuster said he knew no reason for his dismissal. He commented:

"I have been as loyal as a man could be Governor Bailey. I might add that my salary since appointment to the commission has just about equaled the expense of moving to Little Rock, and contributions which I have made to the Bailey campaigns."

He said he had received notice of his dismissal in a letter delivered by a messenger Friday morning, and that he subsequently had been unable to get in touch with the governor, who is ill in a hospital here.

The letter notifying Shuster of his dismissal said Bailey was "working out a plan for the reorganization of the corporation commission and other departments."

Committeeman to Be Elected Here

Will Serve Under Farm Program for DeRoan Township

There will be an election held at the city hall at Hope at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon, November 27, 1937, for the purpose of electing one local committeeman to serve under the Agricultural Conservation program for DeRoan Township, according to Clifford L. Smith, county agent.

This election was scheduled to be held on Wednesday, November 24, 1937, at 11:30 o'clock, but due to the fact that there was not a large enough representation present from the township, it was decided that it should be postponed until the date given above. All eligible voters are urged to be present and vote for your local committeeman.

Taxes Must Be Paid by Then to Avoid Publication in List

Tuesday the books will be closed on personal taxes in Hempstead county.

The delinquent personal tax list will be published twice early in December, the sheriff closing his list November 30 and beginning the transcript for County Clerk Ray E. McDowell, who releases it to the newspaper.

French Threat of War Stirs Italy

Rome Is Aroused by Text of French Naval Man's Speech

ROME, Italy—(P)—An extra police guard was stationed about the French embassy Thursday night as a result of published reports the French naval minister had forecast inevitable war between France and Italy.

Cesar Campinchi, the French minister, was quoted in the Rome press as saying in a speech at Toulon, November 23:

"Why hide it? War with Italy not only is destined, it is necessary. We will have the Fascist hide!"

Campinchi was quoted as saying Italy had designs on Corsica, the French island in the Mediterranean, and adding "it is necessary for Italy to cease the infamous comedy of an un-

Hope Closes Season Beating Dallas, Texas

Bobcats Run Over St. Joseph High by Score of 57 to 14

Victory Gives Hope Season Record 9 Wins and 3 Defeats

EQUAL IN WEIGHT

But Visitors Are Badly Outclassed in Every Department

By LEONARD ELLIS

The Hope High School football team ended a successful season here Thursday by trouncing St. Joseph High School of Dallas, Texas, 57 to 14, before approximately 2,500 fans. The game ended the prep careers of nearly a dozen members of the Hope squad.

The victory gave the Bobcats their ninth conquest of the year against three losses.

Hope scored three touchdowns in the opening quarter, three in the second and three in the third. The fourth quarter, with second and third string players in the game, was scoreless.

Dallas scored its first touchdown in the third period from a plunge from the two-yard stripe after an air attack had advanced the ball to that spot. The visitors' other touchdown came from a line play after advancing the ball to scoring position by an aerial attack.

Noble Masters, Bobcat halfback, led in scoring with four touchdowns. Bright accounted for three and Stone and Ramsey made one each. The first downs were Hope 25, St. Joseph 7.

Visitors Outclassed Although the teams were about equal in weight, the Bobcats outclassed the Dallas school in every department of the game. Dallas received to start the game. Unable to gain, Murphy punted to Bright on the Hope 45.

From that point the Bobcats marched 55 yards and across the goal line without losing possession of the ball. Bright made the touchdown when he found an opening in the center of the line, running 25 yards to score. Parsons kicked goal.

Dallas received but soon punted to Bright on his 45. Again the Bobcats, using a hard running attack, marched straight up the field and across the goal line without losing possession. Masters plunged through tackle from the five-yard line. A bad pass came back from center and Parsons' attempted kick for extra point was blocked.

Dallas received, returned to the 25 where Reese rushed through to throw the ball carrier for a 10-yard loss. Murphy punted to Bright on the 30-yard line and the Bobcats did the successful time marched across the goal line without losing possession of the ball.

Running and passing plays took the oval to eight-yard line where Bright circled end to score. Parsons' kick for extra point was wide.

The Second Quarter Shortly after the second period opened, Masters of Hope intercepted a pass and ran 55 yards to score. It was the longest run of the game.

Two minutes later the Bobcats had possession on the Dallas 30. Bright passed to Ramsey who went across the goal line standing up. Parsons' kick from placement was blocked.

Dallas received. On the third play Bright intercepted a pass and was brought down in midfield. Stone, Parsons and Bright hit the line for consistent gains, advancing to the 11-yard line. On an end-around play, Reese carried the ball to the one-yard line where Stone cracked center for touchdown. A fumble cost the Bobcats the extra point.

The half ended a few minutes later with Hope out in front by a score of 37 to 0.

Dallas failed to make a first down throughout the two quarters.

The St. Joseph team scored on three plays after taking the kickoff to start the second half. Herman returned the kickoff to Hope's 35-yard line. A line play gave the visitors their first 10 yards. A pass was good for 23 yards to place the ball on Hope's two-yard line where Murphy planned over for the touchdown. Place kick was good.

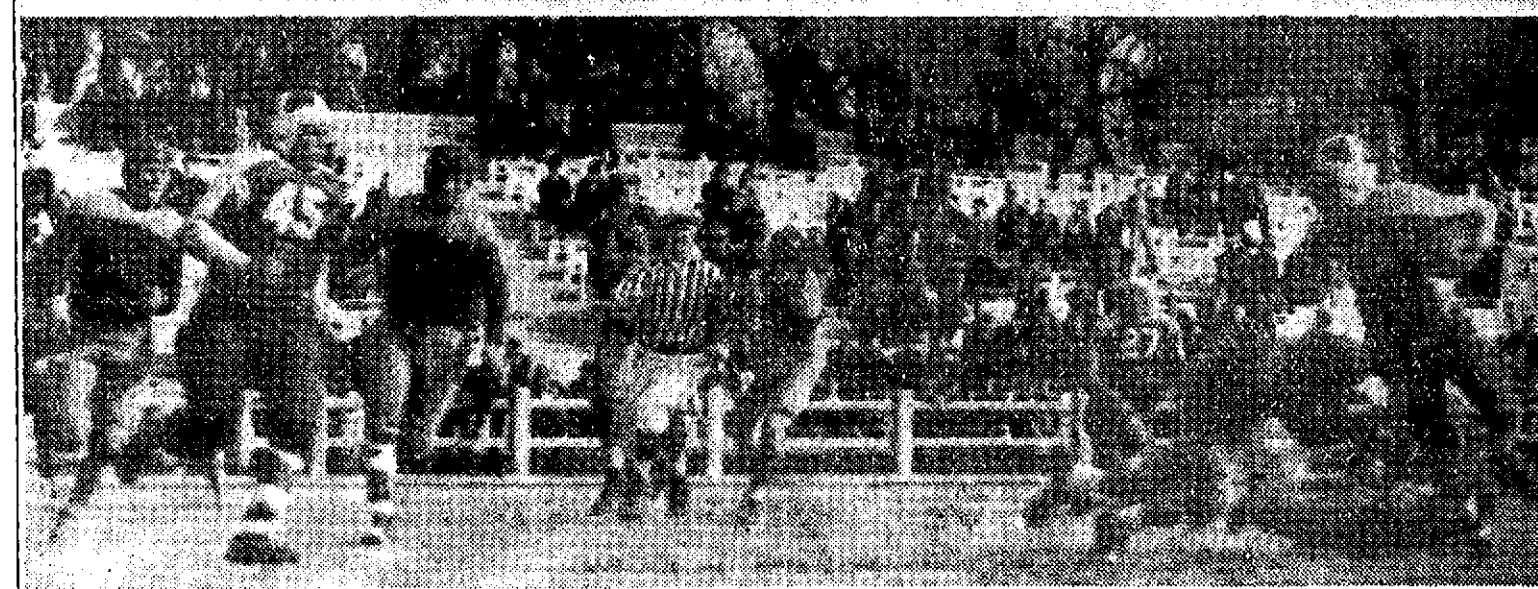

Hope received for the first time, Bright being brought down on his 35. Masters shot a long pass to Reese. The pass and Reese's run was good for 35 yards. Masters passed to Bright to put the Bobcats in scoring position. Again Masters faded back, found Bright in the open and tossed a pass to him for touchdown. Parsons' kick was perfect.

Eight intercepted a pass a few minutes later and ran to the Dallas 18-yard line. Masters went off tackle for

M'Faddin Speaks on Oriental War

Three Possibilities Outlined in Speech to Rotary Club

E. F. M'Faddin outlined to members of Hope Rotary club Friday noon at Hotel Barlow three possibilities military observers and historians see for China in her present invasion by the Japanese.

Reminding his listeners that China has often been conquered, only to swallow up her conquerors by absorption, Mr. M'Faddin said this may be the long-range destiny of the Japanese also should their troops permanently hold China.

But there are three immediate possibilities, he said.

First, the Japanese may establish a new zone of influence south of the Great Wall, and found another puppet state like Manchoukuo.

Second, the present Chinese retreat may actually be a bit of strategy on the part of the German generals who are advising Chiang Kai-Shek, the Chinese leader.

Third, Mr. M'Faddin recalled that in the World War the Germans skillfully retreated through East

New York Prison Played for 'Break'

Laxity Charged in Escape of Three O'Connell Kidnapers

ALBANY, N. Y.—(P)—The New York State Correction Commission reported Friday "laxity in regulation and control" at the county penitentiary at Jamestown, N. Y., where three convicted O'Connell kidnapers escaped November 18.

The report was made after an investigation was conducted following the escape of John O'Leary, Percy (Angel Face) Geary, and Harold (Red) Crowley, facing long federal prison terms for the 1933 kidnaping of John J. O'Connell, Jr., of Albany.

All of the escapees later were recaptured.

F. D. Renews Plan for Tax Revision

Outlines 3 Business-Aid Plans at Weekly Press Meet

WASHINGTON—(P)—President Roosevelt coupled Friday a renewed advocacy of tax revision—as soon as congress is ready—with three other moves designed to aid business.

Listed in his press conference, in reply to questions, they were:

1. A message to congress Monday on means of stimulating private financing of a big housing program.

2. A message to congress Tuesday recommending curtailment of annual federal contributions to state road-building. This slash was recently suggested by Secretary Morgenthau to help balance the Treasury's budget.

3. A letter to department heads urging faster spending of the 1/4 billion dollars available for buying supplies in the remaining months of the fiscal year.

How soon tax revision might be "ready" was not immediately apparent.

Japanese Report 1,500 War Planes in Eastern Siberia

Chiang Kai-Shek Pledges "China Will Resist to Last Man"

TOKYO, Japan—(P)—The Tokyo newspaper Hochi Friday published a dispatch from Tsuruga asserting 1,500 Soviet airplanes had been massed in the maritime provinces, that part of Siberia nearest Japan.

The same source reported 1,000 Russian bombing planes were entering China by way of Sianfu, capital of western Shensi province, presumably to buttress China's resistance to Japan.

Tsuruga is a port on Japan's western coast, normally the terminus of steamer service to Vladivostok. Japanese correspondents there frequently forward rumors of developments in Siberia which are not confirmed.

By the Associated Press Japanese troops crossed Lake Tai, midway between Shanghai and Nanking, pushing on inland Friday in a drive to smash the government of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek.

In Nanking, Chiang, undaunted by the apparent liability of his troops to stop the rapid advance of the Japanese forces up the Shanghai peninsula, reiterated that "China will resist to the last man."

Evils End as People Want Them to End

THE greatest cure for pessimism in this country is the fact that no part of the American scenery ever seems to stand put. Our social life flows into some pretty distressing forms every now and then, but it always remains fluid. Bad as things may get, they never get beyond the reach of change.

It is interesting to find a striking example of this by looking back a few years at conditions in New York City.

That peculiarly American form of highly organized, commercialized and protected lawlessness which goes by the name of "racket" was enjoying the high noon of its heyday, then. Every big city had its rackets, but in New York they had been elevated to the stature of big business. Nobody had ever seen anything like it.

BAD as they were, the prohibition rackets were only part of the picture. Once-respectable labor unions had come under the control of gangsters. Almost every carrying and servicing trade imaginable was paying its regular tribute to the muscle men. There was protection for all of the big shots; the prosecuting machinery would not function, the alliance between politics and crime was air-tight, the police department was effectively shackled, and people were beginning to accept racketeering as an unavoidable evil, like traffic congestion.

And the point is, not so much that things were very bad, but that there was not the slightest reason to hope that they would ever be bettered. It was possible to prove, by inexorable logic, that corrupt political rings would always rule the metropolis, that such rings would always maintain an alliance with the underworld, and that the people would go on and on paying toll through all the future.

But somehow it didn't work out that way. Somehow, in spite of logic, the people of New York elected a reform mayor. Somehow an incorruptible special prosecutor was assigned to clean up the mess. Somehow he found witnesses who would talk, investigators who could not be bribed, juries that would convict and judges who would sentence. The racketeers began to go to jail.

THEN other things that logically couldn't happen did happen. The reform mayor got himself re-elected. The crooked political ring was utterly routed. The special prosecutor got himself elected regular prosecutor. The unions that had been victimized by the racketeers woke up and supported the men who were sending their crooked officials to jail.

And so, today, the picture in New York has changed; furthermore, it has changed in precisely the way that looked utterly impossible half a dozen years ago. We have discovered that gangsterism is not an unavoidable part of big city life, after all, and that no evil is permanent if the people decide they don't want it to be permanent.

Change is the law of life, in America. Remember it: it may save you many hours of pessimism.

An "If" in Shanghai

THE profound effect which Japanese victory in China might have on the complicated network of European imperialism in the orient is indicated by announcement that the Japanese may take over the international settlement at Shanghai.

This warning comes from Lieut.-Gen. Iwane Matsui, commander of the Japanese forces on the Shanghai front. So far, it is only a warning; what gives it point is the perfectly obvious fact that if the Japanese do decide to take over the international city, the white powers have no way of stopping them.

Such a development would completely change the picture of European exploitation of China. The great British investments in China, the vast structure of British trade with China—both are keyed largely to British sovereignty at Shanghai. Make Shanghai a completely Japanese-ruled city, and the effect on British investments and British trade, as on the investments and trade of other European powers, would be profound.

Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine.

Small Hope of Restoring the Hair by Stimulating Scalp Circulation

This is the fourth in a series by Dr. Fishben in which he discusses the hair, its ailments and its care.

(No. 380)

Out of the idea that improvement of the circulation of the scalp will benefit the hair have come innumerable methods for stopping hair from falling or for renewing its growth.

So far, there is no good scientific evidence that any of these methods really works, although it is conceivable that some of them may be useful in delaying trouble briefly.

With the tips of the fingers the scalp may be rubbed and moved about, loosening tissues and causing an increased flow of blood. Most promoters of hair tonics suggest that the tonic be rubbed thoroughly into the scalp in the hope that the rubbing will help the circulation.

Some of these tonics also contain irritant substances which increase the flow of blood because of the slight inflammation.

Heat, causing increased flow of blood to the part of the body that is heated, may be applied by hot towels, by the use of the ultraviolet rays produced through a carbon arc or a mercury vapor quartz light.

With the ultra-violet rays, the skin may be tanned or slightly burned, increasing circulation.

There is not the slightest evidence, however, that increased circulation will restore life to dead hair cells. There is no certain evidence that this system of hair growth restores hair to a scalp when the scalp has that shiny appearance indicating that the cells are no longer capable of producing hair.

One machine for growing hair on bald heads produces an alternating vacuum to encourage circulation of blood in the scalp and thus cause the growth of hair. The alternating vacuum has been used on the legs when circulation was bad and the tissues felt cold.

Careful tests of this new apparatus showed that it failed in every instance to grow hair on bald heads.

All bald-headed men are credulous and try one treatment after another until it becomes certain there is no hope. All of us have seen bald-headed men in barber shops, paying good prices to barbers for hair tonics, ultra-violet lights, and alternating vacuum or suction treatments, administered by barbers often more bald-headed than the customer.

Good Health, Clean Scalp Helpful in Controlling Ordinary Dandruff

This is the fifth in a series by Dr. Fishben dealing with the hair, its ailments and its care.

(No. 381)

When the shoulders and the coat

'Your Husband Has Met With an Accident'

collar are covered with white, shiny scales, anybody can diagnose dandruff. Dandruff is a scurf from the scalp representing scaling of the skin.

All sorts of suggestions have been made as to the causes of dandruff. Ordinarily it is associated with an oversecretion of the glands supplying fat to the hair. It has been suggested that it may be associated with infection by some sort of germ but this has not been definitely established.

Dandruff is uncommon among children but rather frequent among older people. It was not seen often among women when they wore their hair long, but nowadays when the scalp is being constantly manipulated and treated, it is more in evidence. There seems to be evidence that the application of irritants in the form of some hair tonics may increase the amount of dandruff rather than decrease it. It is, of course, quite possible for scaling once it develops, to become subjected to a secondary infection and for this secondary infection to be transmitted to the skin of the chest and back.

When the scalp is neglected, as is frequently done by old people or lazy people, or by young women who fear to dislodge a permanent wave; when the scalp is insufficiently washed and cleaned and insufficiently brushed and combed, dandruff is likely to increase.

Ordinary dandruff is controlled by keeping one's health up to par, by using a fresh comb and brush, and by keeping the scalp suitably cleansed and using enough oil to keep the oiliness of the hair at the right level. It is not advisable to use any kind of hair tonic containing alcohol, stimulants or irritants to the skin without a definite understanding of what is wrong.

There are certain scalp conditions of the scalp that are like ordinary dandruff but which represent much more serious disturbances. In general, dandruff is not responsible for falling hair but may be associated with falling of the hair. It is serious to mistake ringworm of the scalp, or psoriasis for ordinary dandruff.

Dandruff is frequent, but not everyone suffers from it. Even in the same home, among people using the same

Your Children

By Olive Roberts Barton

"Bad" Usually Is Applied to Children Without Enough Justification

What is a really bad child? The one who is disobedient? The boy who is destructive, or the girl who won't help her mother?

You cannot call such children good, but are they really bad? Let us see.

Take the first item, for example. Johnny's parents may be very strict with him. Children, like adults, demand a certain freedom of movement. When law becomes too slavish, the adult loses respect for it. So does Johnny. Again, perhaps home is a completely disorganized place, and there doesn't seem to be much point in trying to please anybody. When there is no feeling of pride in family, obedience has too many enemies to fight.

The destructive child is the victim of impulsiveness, of curiosity and the hundred and one things that drive his active body and mind.

Weak Rather Than Bad

The slacker may be lazy because of physical impairment somewhere, such as infection or malnutrition. Or because there is absolutely no appreciation of what he does. Or because he has never been taught early in his young life that everybody has to put a shoulder to the wheel and help along.

Granted that children can be all these things from other motives not so excuseable, still most children who fail in satisfactory conduct are not really "bad." They are weak, morally, perhaps, or have too strongly to suit us. They are this, that and the other thing, but not wicked.

Nevertheless, there are some few really wicked children, perhaps not through their own fault, but through experience and bad influence, plus a predisposition to prefer the worst.

Now just exactly what constitutes a really bad child? The one who, without justifiable motive, makes it his business to deliberately hurt other people.

Without cause he hates. Without cause he is dishonest. Without any reason he maims and hurts. This is true viciousness, and fortunately such children are rare. When there is a cause (and now we trace most behavior to beginnings), the child can be reached and reclaimed. The others are mostly deviates, as natural inhibitors are lacking.

Symptoms of Viciousness

So be slow, dear parents, to call your boy "bad." Nothing will set up his defiance more quickly, or his defense, and defense has peculiar ways of showing itself. Call him anything else you like, but leave him something to pull himself back with. The word itself, Johnny. Again, perhaps home is a completely disorganized place, and there doesn't seem to be much point in trying to please anybody. When there is no feeling of pride in family, obedience has too many enemies to fight.

The destructive child is the victim of impulsiveness, of curiosity and the hundred and one things that drive his active body and mind.

Famous Film Families Edge Into Hollywood Traditions

HOLLYWOOD.—Give it a few more years and the screen will be developing traditions. There will be impressive genealogical charts in the back of the Motion Picture Almanac, as there are now—tracing the proud families of the stage—in Who's Who in the Theatre.

Just now, having little dignity and an overgrown suspicion of relatives in the picture business, Hollywood is inclined to look patronizingly on the second-generation actors and actresses working on almost every lot.

You may be pretty sure that few if any won parts through parental influence or executive sentiment. The movies are much too hard-headed for that, where acting is involved.

Most of the relatives on studio pay-rolls are high-salaried office stooges who can do no harm.

Of the strictly cinematic second-generation players, only one has been accepted at his own value so far—Douglas Fairbanks, Jr. Tim Holt, son of Jack, seems fairly well established—or will be, following his fat part in "Gold Is Where You Find It." Tyrone Power doesn't count; his puppy was a stage star. So was Fred Stone, and even his daughters before they came to the screen.

Promising Trio

Three youngsters have stepped into important roles lately. One is Leatrice Joy Gilbert, 13, who'll be seen with Walter Huston, and Beulah Bondi in "Benefits Forged." She looks astonishingly like her father, the late John Gilbert. Her mother, Leatrice Joy, was a star under Cecil DeMille.

Agnes Ayres, who made her first big success with Rudolph Valentino in "The Sheik," made and lost a fortune and lately has been playing bit parts.

But she has a 9-year-old daughter, Maria, who's under contract to Hal Roach. She has played in several "Our Gang" comedies, and will have a featured lead in the forthcoming "Our Gang Follies."

(Roach, incidentally, whose fortune was based on kid pictures, has a pretty 17-year-old daughter whom he still won't allow to try for a screen career. Says she's too young.)

Almost from the time she was able to walk and talk, Beverly Hills, daughter of St. Wills and Joan Davis, has deviled her parents for a chance to act. Practiced comedy pictures every Yesterday Determined to win Bob, Honey Bess (girl) persuades Hultman to enter the picture to woo Melissa. He agrees.

CHAPTER VIII

IT was Wednesday morning when excitement reached its highest in the archaeological camp. Bob had the party up in the gray of dawn.

"Let's eat and get going!" he urged. "We can get into the castle before 9 o'clock, I think. Shouldn't be hard to place the last two leaders."

It was hard, and it was rather dangerous, but the job was done. Holliman, who had meant to begin some of his lovelorn, as contracted, didn't find any sort of chance for it, so hard did Bob drive them. It was past nine when the ladders were all safe. Bob himself might have climbed 40 feet then and gone back into the castle, but instead he came back down.

"You are going next, Miss Lane," he smiled at Mary Melissa. "This is really your party, you know."

Quite by chance he looked then at Honey Bee Girl. The Indian was staring longingly upward. Bob, kind of heart anyway, was instantly touched.

"Say, Honey Bee, would you like to go up? With the first party, I mean? Come on, if you want to. You follow Miss Lane, then we'll bring up the rear."

He had no idea what feelings his bland invitation created in each girl's heart. Mary Melissa could have slapped him almost, she told herself. But even so, she recognized his motive, and admired him for it. Honey Bee nodded, cold, impassive.

This first climb up took more than 20 minutes. Nobody spoke. Bob stood at the bottom of each ladder, steadying it until the girls reached the next ledge and the next ladder above. When they had gone single file over the rim, and stood by the castle door facing the bright morning sun, Bob made quite an occasion of it.

"Mary Melissa Lane," he proclaimed, "you are the first white woman ever to set foot in this fortress. Moreover, you are the first woman of any sort—and probably the second human being—to visit here in at least 1000 years!"

THE thought of it thrilled Lissa. She felt a queer tightening in her throat. She said nothing. She smiled at Bob, and together they started across the 200 miles of red and blue and purple and haze spread before them—a gigantic palette, of pastel paints daubed by Nature, and oddly alive by the morning motion of the sun.

Mary Melissa gave thought to the contrast this view meant in her life. In New York City her home was a de luxe apartment 40 stories up from 57th street.

Now she was on a similar height—looking, incidentally, from the porch of yet another apartment. The grandeur, somehow, was much the same.

"It's magnificent, Dr. Barry!" she murmured, it barely audible. The silence, not the roar of traffic, was dominant here. Skyscrapers were not 40 stories, nor 80; they were rocky peaks a hundred stories, or a thousand. A few birds could be seen. Grazing in their new coral 600 feet down were the expedition's mules and horses—but in all the expanse before them was not another visible living thing.

BOB sensed her mood, and the spell of the place gripped him too, caused him momentarily to forget his science, the past that stood in masonry behind them. He gazed at the eastern horizon. Then something—he never knew what—caused him slowly to turn and look at Mary Melissa Lane.

He saw her profile there—really saw the girl for the first time. She had been a person before, a very definite person, who could and did issue a $5000 check that was good, and who fitted surprisingly well into the personnel of a mountain expedition. But now—

By George, her eyelashes are amazingly long! And her nose, and chin—nothing put there, nothing flippant. A solidity, rather; yet delicate, too. Molded so finely. With no fault. His scientist's eye was analyzing her, not at the direction of his mind, but from some deeper force.

Unconsciously she parted her lips a trifle, and he saw perfect teeth. A moment later she turned to him, perceived his intense scrutiny, and turned away smiling. It broke his trance, but Dr. Robert Wilson Barry, archaeologist, realized for the first time in his adult life that the present can be as altogether as fascinating as the past. In him, a mature young scientist, his heart was inexplicably pounding!

"Don't seem to be anybody else here," Hades Jones called. He had been peering in various doors. "Look out for rattlers in places like this."

"Snakes?" queried Lissa. "This high up, Uncle Hades?"

"They come up along rocks, anywhere. Anywhere there's likely to be mice and rats and such like to eat. The pack rat nests in here, I see."

THEY found no rattlesnakes, nor any other sign of recent life. Bob repeated that the place probably had been abandoned sometime in the Dark Ages, as Europe reckoned time.

"But why?" asked Lissa. "Where did they go, I wonder."

"That's exactly why we are here!" Bob reminded. "If we can find the answer to that, it will be worth everything."

"Could they have cut entrance steps in the stone, that have since been eroded away?"

"Hardly. Rainfall is scant in this country. Wind erosion would require maybe a million years for that. No, remains of any stairs they cut would still be visible."

They explored inside. The mummy was valuable, Bob said. No doubt they would find more human remains, after slight digging.

They found many odds and ends of artifacts, the things and tools of life many centuries before, remarkably well preserved by the high, dry atmosphere of what is now called Arizona.

Then Bob picked up a stone hammer.

It was tied to a stick handle, as usual with native weapons. And—most significant—the rawhide thong that tied it was still in good condition, still tight and strong. He stared at it intently.

"Something important?" asked Mary Melissa.

"Very. This skin, on this hammer. Say, somebody was here much less than 1000 years ago. Nearer 100 years, I'd estimate, or this rawhide would have decayed. But the crumbled w-lls, and everything else in sight, look like 10 centuries or more. This complicates the thing immensely, Lissa."

Mary Melissa didn't care! She didn't see the scientific angle, but—

Bob Barry had used her pet name!

A Book a Day

By Bruce Catton

New York—Pictured on Broad Street.

Causes.

Elmer Rice has come a long way since his Pulitzer prize-winning play, "Street Scene." He chose for it, one street and one house on that street in New York. And now in his first novel, "Imperial City" (Coward McCann, $3.00) he sweeps across the broadest canvas of all, the whole of America's biggest city.

The result is a most astounding book, searching, dramatic, kaleidoscopic. In to its bulk have gone the crime, the graft, the society, the business, labor, love, religion of all New York, curiously intermingled. Mr. Rice introduces you first to the member of that incomparable family, the Colemans, of the great investment House of Colemans, and before you've moved very far you're tasting the dirt, the bad manners, the nerveless fascination of all New York.

Mr. Rice strikes innumerable graphic portraits—the prize fighter who turned cultural and crashed the social register; Jacob Lebowitz, the delicatessen proprietor; Perry Kane, the fourth-rate actor who maneuvered his way to millions.

One feels that Mr. Rice saw vital need for this book. He makes much of the strife and the graft and the brothers. Battling labor provides one of the high dramatic moments of the book when the city's power is struck. But curiously introspective as he is in the rest of his book, Mr. Rice makes no conclusions, points no way out of the "imperialism" that is New York.

Perhaps he neglected to do so purposefully. In any event the novel will stand as an extraordinary picture of one of the most extraordinary cities on earth.—P. G. F.

WHY PAVE STREETS WITH CONCRETE?

here's why —

- 1 Every street demands a gritty, non-skid surface for the protection of motorists and pedestrians.
- 2 At night you need a pavement with high visibility.
- 3 Safety also calls for a pavement that is free from chuck holes, ruts and bumps . . . and stays that way with minimum maintenance.
- 4 You want a pavement that drains quickly . . . that is easily cleaned and stays clean . . . no depressions to catch dirt.
- 5 You want a pavement that makes the whole neighborhood look modern, prosperous, attractive.

Concrete . . . and only concrete . . . completely meets all of these specifications.

MRS. SID HENRY TELEPHONE 321

The day will bring some lovely thing—
I say it over each new dawn:
Some gay, adventurous thing to hold
Against my heart when it is gone;
And so I rise and go to meet
The day with wings upon my feet.
I come upon it unaware,
Some sudden beauty without name,
A snatch of song, a breath of pine,
A poem lit with golden flame;
High tangled bird notes keenly thinned
Like flying color on the wind.
No day has ever failed me quite:
Before the greyest day is done
I find some misty purple bloom
Or a late line of crimson sun.
Each night I pause, remembering
Some gay, adventurous, lovely thing

HOPE GOSPEL TABERNACLE

Rev. Noel Perkin, General Secretary of the Assemblies of God, will speak at the Hope Gospel Tabernacle, North Main Street, three times on Sunday, the hours being 11, 2:30 and 7:30.

The Rev. Mr. Perkin has recently returned from a world tour during which he visited many of the countries of Europe and Asia as well as South America and Africa and is in a position to give some first hand information on world conditions both politically and religiously. His position as Missionary Secretary places him in constant touch with some of the nations of the world almost daily by cable, letter and telephone. He has been in charge of directions in regard to the safety of American Missionaries in China and Japan due to the current war.

Most of the speaking engagements of Rev. Perkin are at Missionary conventions and such and Hope is fortunate indeed to have him appear here for three services next Sunday. He is said to be one of the most interesting and convincing speakers ever heard in Hope.

Delegations from ten or twelve towns in southwest Arkansas are expected to be present for the afternoon meeting Sunday at 2:30. This will be a Young Peoples Rally service at which all will be welcomed to hear the reports from the Young People and also to hear Rev. Perkin deliver the sermon of the afternoon.

According to the pastor, Rev. Bert Webb, the general public is given a cordial invitation to hear this outstanding man, preferably at all the services and at least one or more of them.

He comes to Hope directly from a conference with the officials of the Spanish and Central American countries of the Assemblies of God.

W. R. Hamilton, Pastor
“The Sunday school attendance in November has been much better than it was a year ago, or two years ago. We had 259 present November 7, 361 November 14, and 310 last Sunday. Despite the cold weather last Sunday the average for the month so far is 343. Let us pull this figure up to 350 average for the month. This can be done easily if all those who are enrolled will come next Sunday. Or even more important than the number present is the benefit received in the study of the Bible by those who attend. Be there at 9:45 a. m.”

The pastor preaches at the 10:55 worship service on “The Christian's Conception of Money-Using.”
The Training Union, for old and young alike, meets at 3:30.
The evening service, in charge of the pastor, opens with a season of congregational singing at 7:30. The sermon subject is “The Great Invitation.”
Everyone is welcome in all the services of the church “Where the Highways Cross.”

HOPE GOSPEL TABERNACLE
Rev. Bert Webb, Pastor

Let's have a great turnout Sunday for Sunday school to greet Sister Stokes, District Sunday School and Christ's Ambassadors superintendent, who is expected to be present and have something to say to the Sunday school. Shall we all put forth special effort to come ourselves and see that someone else comes along to Sunday school at 9:45.

Rev. Noel Perkin, general missionary secretary of Springfield, Mo., will deliver the Sunday morning message at the 11 o'clock worship service. It will be worth your while to lay aside other things and hear this thoroughly spiritual and able minister speak at this and the other services of the day on Sunday.

Quaker Oats Will Begin Campaign

Six Months Advertising Campaign Given to Hope Star

The Star has recently been appointed by the Quaker Oats Company for a new six months advertising campaign on Quaker Oats, the cereal for the Dionne Quins.

The newspaper campaign will have as one of its features a monoplane glider offer. The glider, similar in appearance and in performance to giant monoplanes, was designed by one of the famous Wright Brothers and can be used in learning some of the fundamental principles of flying the man-sized planes.

The announcement of the campaign and offer was received with a great deal of interest by the Hope grocery trade, as it assures them of generous local, as well as national, advertising support.

2:30 in the afternoon is to be a high point of the day when many out of town visitors are expected to be present.

The truck will run as usual to bring people from the Guernsey community to Sunday school and those, especially young people, who do not come in the morning should catch the truck on its way back sometime about noon and attend the afternoon Christ's Ambassadors service at 2:30. Rev. Perkin and Mrs. Stokes will be on the program.

Special music by the orchestra as well as vocal numbers will feature all the services on Sunday.

Sister Stokes is to speak to the Christ's Ambassadors at 6:30. Children's church will be held at the same time.

Rev. Perkin is the night speaker, the service beginning at 7:30. Spend an enjoyable hour at the Tabernacle. Sunday night, it is Hope's full-gospel center.

A Sure Cure
During an epidemic in a small southern town every infected house was put under quarantine. After the disease had been checked, an old negroess protested vigorously when the health officers started to take down the sign on her house.

“Why, Auntie,” exclaimed the officer, “why don't you want me to take it down?”
“Well, sah,” she answered, “dey ain't ben a bill collector neah dis house since dat sign went up. You all let it alone.”

FROCKS with jackets, such as the bolero in Pattern 8021, are one of the delights of the winter season. Depending upon the fabrics used, the frock can be worn without jacket for dinner or with the jacket as a less formal costume. Note the flattering revers of the bolero and the front fullness in the skirt, achieved with a front panel topped in two slashed pockets. The skirt in velveteen or broadcloth with blouse of satin or metal brocade is very attractive. The pattern includes a complete sew chart, detailing every step in the making.

Rural School Has Single Pupil

Tow-headed Darrel Hadley, 6, has no trouble being “teacher's pet” for he is the only pupil at the Bolton rural school in Montgomery county, Kansas. At the start of the term, Teacher Roy Needels had no pupils, then Darrel transferred from another school and saved Needels from coming daily to a completely empty schoolroom. Photos show Darrel and his teacher both inside and out of the one-room schoolhouse. Note the rows of empty desks.

Christian Fruitfulness
Text: John 15:1-16

From the figure of sowing and reaping in our last lesson, with the assurance that whatsoever man soweth, that shall he also reap, we turn in this lesson to consider somewhat the same thing under the symbol of the vine and its fruitful yield.

How does the vine yield its fruit? Through its roots in the soil, through its contact with the fruit-giving power of nature, through the care with which the vineyard keeper trims it and keeps it directed into disciplined production.

So it is, says Jesus, in the Christian life. It is in proper contact with the forces of grace and truth that the spiritual vine yields its fruit. Christ is the true vine, and God the Father is the husbandman.

A man cannot bear fruit in his life except as he is directly in touch with his source of spiritual life. We must abide in Christ if we would bear Christian fruit.

This relationship of the branch to the vine is a mutual relationship. As long as the branch is abiding in the vine, it is of the same substance and quality.

It is God's purpose concerning men that their lives should be fruitful. The Father is glorified, says Jesus, in our bearing much fruit, and it is in this that we manifest our discipleship. From this figure of the vine and the branch Jesus turns to speak more directly to love. It is love that is the essence of the vine and the branch. It is love that constitutes the relationship between God and Christ, and ourselves.

Experience of the Christian comes from the love of God and the grace of our Lord, Jesus Christ.

As we have this divine love, so it is our privilege to abide in it. And the test of the reality of our love is our fulfillment of the commandments of Jesus, even as he fulfills the Father's commandments and abides in the Father's love.

What a rich experience it is that Jesus opens up to the Christian! “These things have I spoken unto you,” he says, “that my joy may be in you, and that your joy may be made full.”

It is an interesting study to search out all the passages in the New Testament where “joy” is mentioned. The Christian life is not a life of dullness, or of sober seri-ousness. It is not even one of passionate earnestness.

It misses its climax unless there be in it real joy—the exuberance that cries in ecstasy, “Thanks be unto God for His unspeakable gift.”

Would Go Over With a Bang!

“What are you doing there?”
“I'm working on an invention. It'll make my fortune.”

“What is it?”
“A photograph record that will automatically explode after the sixth time it's played.”

Oatmeal Is Good Crumb Substitute

Following Ingredients Are Essential in Preparing Torte

When a cake wears its welcome out and lasts longer than the family's appetite then many housewives think it's time to bake a Torte. However, for the cook whose cakes are so good that they disappear before she can salvage any crumbs, oatmeal acts as a good crumb substitute in preparing tortes. The eggs and nuts give the oatmeal torte its lightness and richness.

The following ingredients are essential in preparing Oatmeal Torte:

1 cup all-purpose flour, 4 eggs, separated, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 2 cups Quick Quaker Oats, ¼ teaspoon salt, ½ cup butter, 1½ cups sugar, 1 teaspoon vanilla, ¾ cup milk, 1 cup chopped nuts.

Sift flour, measure and resift with baking powder and salt. Cream butter, add 1 cup of sugar and blend, then add egg yolks one at a time and beat thoroughly. Add vanilla. Add Quaker Oats to flour mixture and add to butter mixture alternately with milk, beginning and ending with dry ingredients. Place mixture in refrigerator and beat egg whites until frothy; then to this add remaining sugar, beating until smooth and stiff. Spread batter over bottoms of 2 well buttered 9-inch spring form pans. Spread orange over surfaces and sprinkle with chopped nuts. Bake in moderate oven 530 degrees for 30 minutes. Cool and put together with following pineapple filling:

One-half cup water, 1 cup crushed pineapple, 1 tablespoon cornstarch, ¾ cup sugar, 1 egg, beaten, salt.

Turn water and pineapple into top of double boiler. Add cornstarch, sugar and salt and cook over boiling water 20 minutes, stirring constantly. Add hot mixture slowly to beaten egg whites, stirring well, then return it to double boiler, and cook 2 minutes longer. Spread this when cooled between layers of torte. Serve with whipped cream. Makes 12 servings.

Too Long!

City Flapper: “Why didn't you tell me before I undressed?”

Country Constable: “Well, there ain't no law against undressin'.”

STORIES IN STAMPS

Nature's Most DAZZLING LOVER

MOST dazzling of nature's courtships is that of the bird of paradise, plumed fellow of the New Guinea jungles. It is at the mating season that the bird of paradise reaches his crescendo of beauty. Hanging head downward from a limb, the male of the species begins his love making in a thoroughly fiery manner. Really he is a cascade of color, a ripple of shimmering, deepest blue; a splash of velvet black; a dash of blue and white, flanked by the brownish-mauve inner surface of the wings. Every motion sends a color wave across the breast feathers.

Swinging back to a standing position, the bird spreads his wings in graceful arcs, fanlike, billows his plumes. Then commences a rhythmic strut, back and forth, along the branches, while the bird fences away at his imaginary enemies. Intermittently the bird becomes quiet, only to burst anew into a raucous call as he resumes his rhythmic dance. Meanwhile, the female is supposed to be looking on, choosing her mate. The bird of paradise is shown here on a 1933 surcharged stamp of Papua, a part of New Guinea.

Alabama Wins Over Vanderbilt, 9 to 7

Arkansas Trounces Tulsa University by Score of 28 to 7

By the Associated Press

Alabama wound up its regular football season Thursday with a hard-earned 9-7 victory over Vanderbilt to remain undefeated and untied and in sole possession of the Southeastern Conference championship. Whether that triumph, gained before a capacity crowd of 22,000 spectators on Hayward Sanford's field goal from the 23-yard line midway through the final period, will suffice to earn Alabama an invitation to Pasadena from California's Golden Bears remained to be seen. There were no indications that California would make its choice until after Saturday's program, when the principal Eastern contenders, Pitt and Fordham, send their unbeaten teams against Duke and New York University, respectively.

Penn-Cornell in Tussle

It remained for two Eastern "Ivy League" teams to provide the day's 61,000, with the most spectacular scoring. Although outplayed from the start to finish, Penn had the high-powered offense stymied at 20-20 after three periods but finally succumbed to Cornell's late rush, 34-20.

Duquesne provided one of the season's major upsets in a 14-7 defeat of Detroit as Brown capitalized on Frank Foster's 95-yard runback of the opening kickoff to defeat Rutgers, 7-6; Catholic U. buried South Carolina with passes, 27-14, and West Virginia, paced by a pair of sophomore backs, crushed George Washington, 26-0.

Southern Loop Blurry

The southern Conference championship ended in a tangle with North Carolina more likely to receive general recognition as titleholder than Maryland's Terrapins, who knocked over Washington and Lee, 8-0, to finish with a conference record of two victories and no defeats or ties. North Carolina, which had completed its conference program with four victories and a tie in five games, trounced Virginia, 40-0. Clemson passed out of the picture as a result of a scoreless draw with Furman. Other conference games saw Virginia Tech upset Virginia Military, 12-6; Wake Forest beat Davidson, 19-7, and Richmond turn back William and Mary, 6-0.

Alabama's sensational comeback against Vanderbilt featured a Southeastern program marked otherwise only by Tennessee's 13-0 conquest of Kentucky and Mississippi State's surprising 9-7 defeat of Mississippi.

Kansas lost its last chance to figure in the Big Six championship by playing Missouri to a scoreless draw. Nebraska can clinch the title Saturday by either tying or defeating Kansas State. Washington University (St. Louis) won a Missouri Valley Conference decision from St. Louis University 6-0.

Arkansas Trounces Tulsa

In the Southwest, Texas A. & M.'s first period touchdown proved enough to turn back Texas, 7-0, in a conference game that had no bearing on the title race. Arkansas, the 1936 champion, won a non-conference battle squelching Tulsa, 28-7.

Colorado's Buffaloes, undefeated and untied, crushed Denver, 34-7, and annexed the Rocky Mountain Conference championship with six successive conference triumphs. Utah disposed of Utah State, 27-0, and finished in a tie with Denver, each with five victories and two defeats.

Montana got two touchdowns in the final quarter to down North Dakota, 14-3.

eight yards. Eason plunged to the four-yard line where Masters circled end for touchdown. Parsons' kick was wide.

A few minutes later Dallas had the ball on its own 25. Reese of Hope intercepted a pass and ran to the six-yard line. Masters in two tries, went off tackle to score. Parsons kicked goal.

As the third quarter was ending and Hope leading at that time, 57 to 7, the Bobcats had the ball on the 5-yard line. Ramsey hid out and took a pass from Bright to score. The play was called back and Hope penalized. On the next play Bright plunged off tackle to score. The ball was brought back and Hope again penalized.

With fourth down and 15 to go, Parsons attempted to make the score 60 for Hope, but his attempt at a field goal was wide. As the fourth quarter started, Coach Hammons jerked all his regulars with the exception of Eason.

The second and third string players saw most of the last half. The football program, published by school students, listed the following as playing their last game for Hope:

Reese, Stone, W. Parsons, Jewell, Keith, Quimby, Ramsey, Bright, Aslin, Masters, Fulkerson, Mack Turner, J. W. Bearden, Leonard Bearden.

Social Security Law Is Explained

One Part Is Payroll Savings—Other Part Old-Age Charity

Although the Social Security Act is considered a clear and definite charter with the public, some features of the Act are parallel in some sections and different in others. This fact tends to confuse many people, according to Leonard S. Reid, field office manager of the board at Texarkana, Ark., who recently visited Hope to clear away any confusion that might exist in the minds of local people.

For instance, Mr. Reid, said, no monthly insurance payments will be paid to persons in included occupations who reach 65 prior to January 1, 1942, and then only to those who have worked part of one year in each of five and who have been paid a total of $2,000 or more in wages during that period. Many holders of account numbers are not aware, however, that lump-sum payments are made under certain circumstances. A person in an included occupation, for example, who reaches 65 before becoming eligible for monthly payments, may receive 3 1/2 per cent of the total wages paid him since December 31, 1936. Likewise, the estate of a person of any age who dies will be paid a lump-sum payment of 3 1/2 per cent of the wages that person has been paid in included occupation since December 31, 1936.

Those entitled to such payments, Mr. Reid said, may obtain blanks for claims at the nearest field office. There is little delay in obtaining payments if these simple forms are filled out correctly.

Old-age assistance for persons in need, sometimes called "pensions," is a different matter, according to Mr. Reid. Although the Social Security Board participates in these to the extent of half the payment allotted, up to a maximum of $30 a month, the state administers the program and those who are interested should apply to Miss Gussie Hyman, 309 West Tenth Street, Little Rock, Ark. Of course, a state may pay an individual more than $30 a month but the federal government participates only to the extent of half, up to $30 a month.

Employers should remember that all taxes under Titles VIII and IX of the Act are payable to the nearest Collector of Internal Revenue, who will furnish the desired information on that subject.

Unemployment compensation also is administered by the state under a Federal-State program. Although this state has a law providing for unemployment compensation, no payments will be paid to wage earners out of work until after a two-year period has passed. This period will enable the state to build up a reserve fund to meet the demand for such payments.

"My office will be glad to answer my inquiries in this district," Mr. Reid said. "Just address 'Field Office, Social Security Board, 306 Federal Building, Texarkana, Arkansas.' Persons entitled to lump-sum payments should send in their request for forms and information at the earliest opportunity."

Road Funds Can't Be Matched Here

State Will Use Only $900,000 of 3 1/2 Million Offered

LITTLE ROCK—The United States Bureau of Public Roads announced from Washington Thursday apportionment of $3,513,705 to Arkansas for the fiscal year beginning next July. The amount will include $2,187,752 in regular federal aid; $437,550 for secondary roads, and $888,403 for grade crossing elimination. The bureau's apportionments for the United States totaled $200,000,000.

State Highway Director James R. Rhyne said that Arkansas would receive only the $893,403 allotment for grade crossing elimination since it was the only allotment which the state was not required to match.

"We must match the other allotment dollar for dollar," he said, "and we don't have a dollar for this purpose."

Mr. Rhyne said $2,201,562 in federal funds still is available for Arkansas road construction during the current fiscal year but that the money could not be used since it was impossible for the funds to be matched. The last session of the legislature made no appropriation to match federal funds for road construction purposes. The next regular session of the General Assembly does not convene until January, 1939.

Mr. Rhyne said that nearly half of the $893,403 allotted for the next fiscal year would be spent in construction of two overpasses over railroad tracks at Texarkana.

Rhyne said preliminary plans of the Highway Department call for a gigantic viaduct from Broad street south over the Missouri Pacific Lines tracks to replace a structure that has been in service many years.

A second overpass will span the Cotton Belt tracks about 150 yards south of the larger structure.

"Tentative plans call for spending something more than $400,000 for the work at Texarkana," he said.

Even now the Japanese are entering just such a lake country in China, with the German-aided Chinese retreating at the great speed, always with the possibility of suddenly enveloping the strung-out Japs from either flank.

Third, the most potent possibility in the Orient is that Russia may come out openly on the side of China and declare war against Japan.

MIND Your MANNERS

Test your knowledge of correct social usage by answering the following questions, then checking against the authoritative answers below:

1. May a guest at a cocktail party talk to another guest whom he has never met?
2. In modern language usage is lunch or luncheon the preferred term?
3. Should a hostess make it easy for a house guest to attend church if he is in the habit of going?
4. Must an invitation to a sit down meal be answered whether the hostess requests an answer or not?
5. Is it rude to borrow a book and keep it for months?

What would you do if—

You give a cocktail party and a guest drinks too much—

- (a) Ask another guest to see that he gets home safely?
- (b) Assume no responsibility for him?
- (c) Laugh about him with your other guests?

Answers

1. Yes. The fact that they are sharing a hostess' hospitality serves as an introduction.
2. Lunch.
3. Yes. The hostess should suggest it.
4. Yes.
5. Yes, and yet, unfortunately, a common practice.

Anybody can pick a so-called ALL-AMERICA football team. In fact, almost everybody does.

But the important thing is to give readers of American sports a real ALL-AMERICA.

Such a task requires first-hand observation and team work by hundreds of men who actually are on the ground to study every gridiron move.

Since 1925 the annual ALL-AMERICA of The Associated Press has been selected by 1,400 football specialists—the sports editors of 1,400 member newspapers. They form the composite football expert. From coast to coast, these men see all games through trained eyes.

They make their nominations to AP's General Sports Editor, Alan Gould, who analyzes and announces their findings.

The product of this scientific sifting of the nation's gridiron talent is an authentic ALL-AMERICA.
